FACILITIES, OUTDOOR.

When sunlight is likely to cause overheating or discomfort of the animals, sufficient shade by natural or artificial means shall be provided to allow all animals kept outdoors to protect themselves from direct sunlight

In an effort to locate a responsible person, a brief walk around the animal facility was possible. During this walk around a Bengal tiger was observed in an enclosure without any type of shade. The temperature inside the enclosure was 92 degrees, with bright sun. The shift door which leads to the shaded portion of this enclosure was closed. This tiger appeared to be hot, and was observed to be panting rapidly. An accumulation of white frothy saliva was also observed on the tongue and around the lips. There was no water available for this tiger within this portion of the enclosure. The tiger was observed to be lying in an small area which provided only a small shadow from adjacent enclosures. The weeds/grass inside the enclosure was of insufficient height to provide any shade to this animal.

Suitable shade shall be provided at all times. During hot weather it is also advisable to provide access to drinking water at all times.
