Pet Travel From the United States to New Zealand

Last Modified:

Travel Requirements Based on Pet Type

Carefully read ALL of the requirements related to your pet on this page.

- This page provides the most recent entry requirements and can change without notice.
- It is the responsibility of the veterinarian to make sure the pet has met all health requirements of the destination country before issuing a health certificate.
- Failure to meet the requirements may result in problems gaining certificate endorsement or difficulties upon arrival in the destination country.
- Health certificates must be legible, accurate, and complete.

Notification from New Zealand's government: Import permit application cut-off date is November 8, 2024. Import permit applications submitted after November 8, 2024, will be assessed by MPI as soon as they are able. However, they can give no guarantee that permits submitted after November 8 will be processed prior to February 28, 2025.

Click here to find a checklist you can use (click Step 1, then click the appropriate link under Support documents, and scroll to the end of the document)

- The mainland United States, Puerto Rico, U.S. Virgin Islands, and Northern Mariana Islands are considered a Category 3 country (rabies absent or well controlled).
- Hawaii, Guam, and American Samoa are considered a Category 2 country (rabies-free).

Upon arrival in New Zealand:

The following documents must be presented:

a) An import permit issued by the Ministry of Primary Industry (MPI) (copy acceptable).

- Permit to import applications can be found on the MPI Website here.
- Completed applications should be submitted to Animal Imports (animalimports@mpi.govt.nz) at least 20 business days in advance of the date you need the permit.

b) Health Certificate A issued by a USDA Accredited Veterinarian and endorsed by USDA APHIS, and Health Certificate B issued and endorsed by USDA APHIS.

c) Original laboratory reports OR copies of laboratory reports endorsed by USDA APHIS. Effective immediately, New Zealand will no longer accept the 2ME-RSAT test as the stand-alone test for Brucella canis testing for dogs. The approved tests for Brucella canis are: RSAT (not the 2ME-RSAT), TAT, CPAg-AGID, and IFAT.

The laboratory reports must include:

- Unique microchip identification for each animal, consistent with the health certificate
- Dates of sample collection
- Test type
- Test result

d) Original vaccination records (not required for cats from Category 2 states/territories).

e) If the pet is on any medication, a copy of the veterinarian's prescription and a Declaration of Medicines is required. The pet's microchip must be on all documentation.

f) Importer dog breed declaration (to be provided upon arrival in New Zealand).

Your pet will be inspected by New Zealand Officials. You will need to contact MPI at least 72 hours before travel to arrange for this veterinary inspection.

Your pet will be quarantined upon arrival in New Zealand for at least 10 days.

Important Travel Considerations

Considerations for airline travel and cruises:

Airlines and shipping lines have their own policies and requirements for transporting pets. Check with your airline or shipping representative to determine what requirements they may have.

Learn how you can improve the safety of dogs and cats during air travel.

View additional information for pet owners, airlines, and others about APHIS endorsement of international health certificates (239.52 KB).

If pets or support animals accompany you on a cruise, you must comply with entry rules for every country or port where your pet or support animal exits the ship.

Will you be returning to the United States with your pet?

View APHIS Requirements

ALERT: If you're traveling with a dog, be aware that the CDC has additional requirements for bringing a dog into the United States. You must follow CDC's requirements, or your dog will not be allowed to enter the United States.

If you are transiting (passing through) the European Union:

If your pet is traveling through (transiting) a country in the European Union (EU) on the way to a third, non-EU country, you will also need a transit health certificate for your pet for the EU. The transit health certificate will be the same as if your pet's final destination was the EU country. Use the information and steps above under "Travel Requirements Based on Pet Type" to determine which health certificate should be used. View a list of EU countries.
