Pest Information for New Mexico

Last Modified:

Hawaii (includes America Samoa, Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, and Guam)

Active Federal Quarantines

The following pests have Federal quarantines in certain areas of this State. Other Federal and State quarantines may apply. Learn about State-level quarantines.

There are no Federal quarantines right now.

Asian Longhorned Beetle

Attacks: hardwood trees, national forests

Citrus Greening and Asian Citrus Psyllid

Attacks: citrus trees

Imported Fire Ants

Attacks: buds and fruits of crop plants

Mediterranean Fruit Fly

Attacks: fruits, vegetables and nuts

Mexican Fruit Fly

Attacks: fruits, particularly citrus and mango

Oriental Fruit Fly

Attacks: fruits and vegetables

Spongy Moth

Attacks: trees and shrubs

Sudden Oak Death

Attacks: trees

Watch Out For These Pests

This state has some crop, forest, or urban area(s) where the following pests or diseases could survive year-round.

Asian Longhorned Beetle

Attacks: hardwood trees, national forests

Citrus Greening and Asian Citrus Psyllid

Attacks: citrus trees

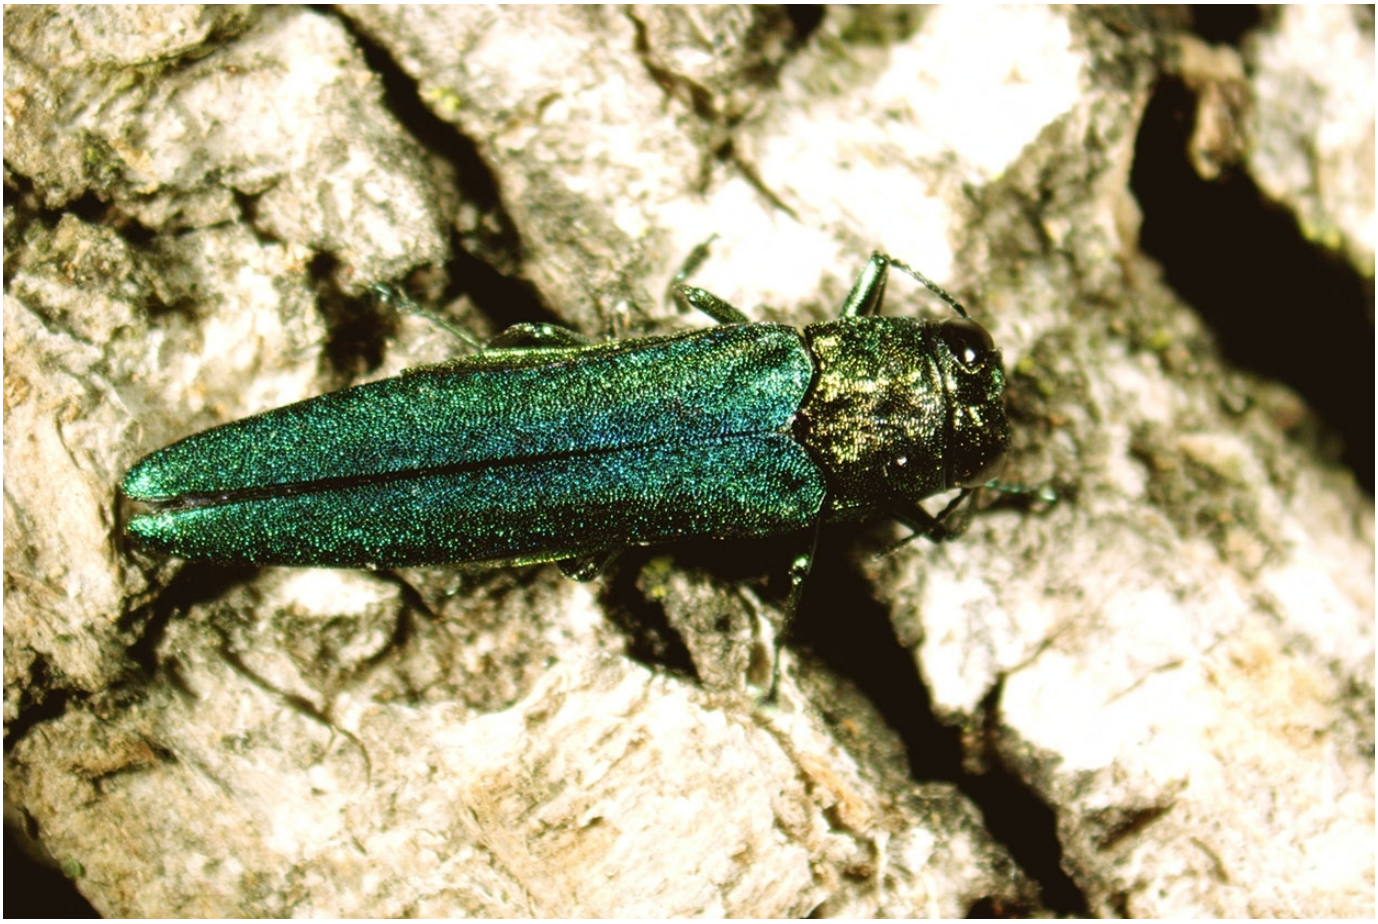

Coconut Rhinoceros Beetle

Attacks: palm trees, including coconut, date, and oil palms

Emerald Ash Borer

Attacks: ash trees

European Cherry Fruit Fly

Attacks: Sweet and tart cherries, and other environmental host such as honeysuckle and dogwood

European Grapevine Moth

Attacks: wine and table grapes

Flighted Spongy Moth Complex

Attacks: North American tree and shrub species

Giant African Snail

Attacks: plants, fruits and vegetables

Imported Fire Ants

Attacks: buds and fruits of crop plants

Mediterranean Fruit Fly

Attacks: fruits, vegetables and nuts

Mexican Fruit Fly

Attacks: fruits, particularly citrus and mango

Old World Bollworm

Attacks: more than 180 plant species

Oriental Fruit Fly

Attacks: fruits and vegetables

Spongy Moth

Attacks: trees and shrubs

Spotted Lanternfly

Attacks: fruit, ornamental and woody trees

Sudden Oak Death

Attacks: trees

See More See Less

Report a Pest

Have you recently encountered the listed pests or any invasive species?

If so, contact the State Plant Health Director below:

New Mexico State Plant Health Director

Dustin Grant

Email: dustin.r.grant@usda.gov

Phone: 575-494-5413

Mailing Address:

270 South 17th St.

Las Cruces, NM 88005

Office Manager:
Vacant

Associate Executive Director:
Vicki Wohlers (Acting): (970) 619-0652

Print