

Purified Antibodies Derived from Cell Cultures

European Union authorities have verified that purified antibodies derived from cell cultures are not considered animal by-products. No certification should be required for these purified antibodies if they are not shipped mixed with other animal-origin material.

If they are contained in an animal origin medium, then the import may be subject to Regulation (EU) 142/2011 requirements.