

Rodent-Origin Materials (for purposes other than human or animal consumption)

Hungary does not require certification for materials imported from the United States that are derived from rodents (and intended for purposes other than human or animal consumption). Exporters should have their Hungarian importers apply to Hungarian authorities for an import permit. That permit should not require any APHIS facility approval or certification.