

Rendered Meals Exported to India

The Indian Government confirmed in July 2004 that protocols for the import of rendered meals have not been developed, and therefore rendered meals are not eligible for import into India regardless of the species of origin.

Exporters should have their Indian importers apply for import permits, and provide copies of those import permits, if granted, to the endorsing Veterinary Services Area Office, for review.

Domestic Requirements in India for Rendered Meals

- All rendered products are prohibited for use in ruminant feeding.
- There is no prohibition on the feeding of rendered meals originating from animals other than ruminants to animals other than ruminants.