

Rodent and Non-Human Primate Products for Technical Purposes

The Netherlands does not require government certification for most materials derived from rodents or non-human primates imported for technical purposes. The importer in the Netherlands must apply to Dutch authorities for an import permit. The import permit should not require any government certification of the materials.

Exception: The information in this document does not apply to materials exported to the Netherlands for human or animal consumption, nor materials the Dutch authorities determine should be imported as intermediate products under Regulation (EU) 142/2011 as amended.

For more information on obtaining import permits, the Dutch importer may contact import@vwa.nl.
