

Non-Animal Origin Materials Intended for Human or Animal Consumption

The Russian government requires certifications for non-animal origin food/feed (and food/feed ingredients) that cannot be endorsed by Veterinary Services.

FDA may be able to provide some certification for some of these materials.

Exception: Livestock feed additives derived from “microbiological synthesis” (e.g. yeast products) that do not contain any items of plant or animal origin: These products may be allowed into Russia under special import permits granted to the importer by the local authorities in Russia. No government certification is required or should be endorsed for these materials.