

Diagnostic and Research Samples

Diagnostic and Research Samples derived from ungulates or birds:

Switzerland requires the importer to obtain an import permit for the import of diagnostic and research samples derived from ungulates or birds, but does not require any government certification.

Diagnostic and Research Samples derived from animals other than ungulates or birds:

Switzerland does not require government certification for diagnostic and research samples derived from animals other than ungulates or birds. However, an import permit is required if the commodity of the shipment is greater than or equal to one kilogram.
